"Absolutely hilarious" "animated story-telling" "a theatrical experience"
--Utah Theatre Bloggers Association (2020 Great Salt Lake Fringe Festival)

"Entertaining" "Sardonic kvetching"
--Fringe Festival KC (2021 Kansas City Fringe Festival)

Selected by Airbnb as a high-quality experience for Boston visitors

The Show: Tales of a Reluctant World Traveler is the story of how a Boston homebody turned a rotten, solo trip around the globe into a comedy novel and an acclaimed one-man play. The show is part travelogue, part performance, and part off-kilter author talk. A must-see for book lovers, writers, travelers, whiners, kvetches, and misanthropes. Please note: The show carries content warnings for gooey diseases, heartless publishers, and liquor made from cobras.

The Performer: Randy Ross is a Boston-area novelist and story-teller. His first novel, God Bless Cambodia, was published in 2017 by The Permanent Press, a New York-area publisher of literary fiction. He has performed at more 30 fringe festivals around the U.S., Canada, and in Edinburgh, Scotland. In 2007, Ross took a four-month, solo trip around the world and learned to say in three languages: "Speak English?" "Got Pepto-Bismol?" and "Is this the evacuation helicopter?" His shows and novel were inspired by the trip.
