Synopsis: A case for human connection, chance, and classical art. TESS (played by Kirstin Caguioa) is scrambling to get her last painting done before her first gallery show opens later that same evening, while MAGGIE (played by Ella Cole) adjusts to life back at home after retiring from professional hockey, as well as dealing with the death of her father. Searching for an interviewee to get into local journalism program, Maggie stumbles upon Tess in her home and the two are forced to work together and push forward through the weight of their past, and the fear of the future to figure out who they are, and where do they go from here.
